Get closer to nature with biophilic design.

Taking inspiration from the world around us, biophilic design uses nature as a blueprint to improve human well-being.

Our Human Spaces report explains how integrating Biophilic Design can have a positive impact on guest experiences and your ROI.

Choose modular flexibility.

With modular flooring, you can mark out distinct areas to highlight architectural features or reveal subtle surface details. Flooring becomes an adaptable part of your interior finishes.

And it's entirely practical.

Better acoustics

Hush disturbing footsteps and loud conversations. With our flooring, you get softer-feeling and greater noise reduction. You and your guests can be assured that noise reduction aspects are integrated across our product lines.

Easy to maintain

Our carpet tiles are made with solution-dyed nylon to keep their colour over time, even when harsh cleaning products are used.

Long-lasting LVT

Our Ceramor ceramic bead coating means tiles resist scratches and scuffs. While a fibreglass layer between two core sheets adds dimensional stability and flexibility.

Less waste

Installing a broadloom carpet creates up to 15% waste. We reduce that to 3 or 4%, and even less if using our non-directional products.

Choose flooring that respects
the planet.

All our products are carbon neutral. And because we know your flooring's impact, we can help with your carbon emission goals. We'll make sure the carbon impact of your flooring is offset – at no extra cost to you. And you'll receive a certificate to show guests you've chosen Carbon Neutral Floors™.

Now that's a warm welcome.
